Henry W. English, Esq., bas re turned from his trip West, and is looking several years younger than when he went away. All were glad to see him. It does a man good to go abroad and jostle against his fellow men and rub the rust off. He received a hearty welcome from friends all along his route, and if he ever catches any of them this way he will "fix" them for it. He did not know he had so many friends in the West before. Well, you transplant a sister or a niece in the West and they "multiply" wonderfully, but let them stay in the East and ten chances to one but what they will dry up and blow away. The West is a great country and has a thriving, go-ahead people. Mr. English says he intends to "go West" again some time.

That married woman who lives on the corner of South and Cross streets, who received a present of a dress from a married man, has caused much family grief, and said man's wife threatens dire vengeance on her unless she reforms. She runs the streets too much nights, lets her children run loose with nymphs du pave, and if Mrs. - should thrash her nobody will regret it. A woman "scorned" is far more dangerous than a woman "corned."
